Book readers and dealers lined up early last Friday for the opening of the 45th annual Pequot Library Book Sale at the Pequot Library in Southport. During the first day of the sale, clockwise from above, Eric Elsaesser of Fairfield, 7, found a quiet spot amidst the chaos to look through the selection of children's books. Lesley Levenson of Stamford, a school teacher, looked through a stack of children's books to share with her students during the school year. Book Sale Chairman John Hartwell of Greens Farms, left, addressed a long line of people just prior to the sale's kickoff.
